Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

EAST Arkansas is pretty sore about the 2 per cent sales tax, and their newspapers are "rubbing it in" on us because of our recent fight—successful, however—against the Texarkana toll bridge deal. The Blytheville Courier News made some interesting remarks, which were picked up by the Helena World, as follows:

Vanderlip, Famed N. Y. Banker, Heads Pike Cinnabar Co.

Mercury Producers, Inc., at Work 15 Miles From Murfreesboro

15 TONS PER DAY
Pike County Field Yields 20 Pounds Mercury Per Ton of Ore

NASHVILLE, Ark.—Following up work which has been carried on in a more or less spasmodic way for the past several years in the cinnabar region in Pike county, the Mercury Producers, Incorporated, a Delaware corporation which has been admitted to Arkansas, has started work on a large scale on the holdings formerly operated by the Southwestern Cinnabar Co., about 15 miles from Murfreesboro.

The company, the stock of which is all subscribed by its few stockholders, expects to finally develop a system with three mills on their 586 acre tract. One mill is ready for operation and is scheduled to be set in motion Tuesday. The building of the other plants will depend largely upon the findings of the company as the ore from their first mine is worked.

Frank A. Vanderlip, New York, chairman of the board.
J. A. Miller, Murfreesboro, president and general manager.
Dr. G. P. McNaughton, Miami, Okla., vice president.
Chas. A. Frankenhoff, New York, vice president.
R. E. Root, New York, secretary and treasurer.
Frank A. Vanderlip, Jr., New York, vice president and assistant secretary and treasurer.
M. J. (Scotty) Euston, Murfreesboro, superintendent.

The Nashville News man paid a visit to the mine last Friday and was surprised at the stupendousness of the development. Some forty or fifty men were at work preparing the plant for operation, cleaning out shafts to secure an immediate supply of ore and driving a main shaft into the side of the mountain at the Parnell Hill plant.

A Beautiful Section
The road to the mine, which is five miles from Highway No. 27, leads through a mountainous country which is now little settled, although operations on the cinnabar deposits have been carried on for several years. It is a beautiful section which one travels through to reach the plant. The development so far only adds to the greatness of the scene.

The holdings of the Mercury Producers, Incorporated, are a very small part of the cinnabar vein, which is known to be 30 miles long and a mile wide, making a total of over 20,000 acres in the area.

The plant being put into operation will have a capacity for crushing and extracting the mercury from 15 tons of rock per day, but if the ore proves to be as rich as the company believes, their capacity will be increased to two or three hundred tons daily. The ore has all run very high grade so far.

Fort Smith Loses Exemption Plea on State Sales Tax

Not Entitled to Border-City Rating, Says Attorney General Bailey

REPEALERS GATHER TO HOLD FOX HUNT

"Anti's" to Meet Several Thousand Strong at Wynne on Thursday

FORT SMITH, Ark.—(AP)—Attorney General Carl E. Bailey ruled Wednesday that Fort Smith is not entitled to the border-city rating under the new sales tax law, and therefore the merchants there must collect the tax at the 2 per cent rate prevailing elsewhere.

Repealers to Meet

WYNNE, Ark.—(AP)—Preparations were made Wednesday to accommodate several thousand persons expected here Thursday for the Arkansas Sales Tax Repeal association meeting. Mayor O. H. Poole of Wynne said the association will probably decide whether it would make an effort to induce representatives and senators to pledge themselves to vote for repeal of the sales tax in the event of a special legislative session.

Hall Sinks by Guins

CONWAY.—J. S. Hall of Scotland, Van Buren county, state senator from the twenty-sixth district and author of the 2 per cent sales tax law which bears his name, declared here Tuesday that he favors Governor Futrell calling a special session of the legislature and repealing the exemption clause of the law, but that he is unalterably opposed to repeal of the sales levy.

"I fought the exemption clause when the matter was being discussed in the senate," Senator Hall said, "and I am willing that it be repealed and a straight 2 per cent tax be levied with no exemptions."

Senator Hall said he would not sign a pledge to vote to repeal the law and challenged foes of the tax to offer some other scheme to educate 200,000 school children and care for unemployables of the state.

"This same bunch which is now howling for repeal of the sales tax will be asking Governor Futrell to call out the militia next winter to protect their property from idle workers and hungry men if the sales tax is repealed," Senator Hall declared.

He said that since enactment of the law Arkansas has been granted $1,400,000 federal funds for schools and $600,000 for unemployables, which would not have been obtained had not the sales tax law been passed. Another $1,300,000 in federal funds for the aged and unemployables will be lost immediately if the law is repealed, he said.

Good Homes Group Wins Recognition

Hempstead County Committee Is Granted Honorable Mention

The Better Homes Committee of Hempstead county, under supervision of Miss Helen Griffin, home demonstration agent, was recently granted honorable mention by a committee representing Better Homes in America, an educational organization of New York.

The Hempstead County Better Homes committee is composed of two members each from the 22 home clubs in this county under supervision of Miss Griffin.

"Your program was very successful in stimulating home improvement of a valuable type and impressed the committee on awards with its quality. They commented particularly upon the widespread co-operation in your program," a letter from Catherine F. Linton, executive secretary of Better Homes in America, said.

It would be easy to overlook the picture and point to Washington as a city of ogres and cheaters. But it would be fairer to point out that there are various spots where officials, speaking confidentially, do so only in low voices and never over the telephone.

Program Is Ready for Visiting Day at Station Friday

I. W. Duggan, First Assistant to Cully A. Cobb, Will Speak

TO HOLD FOX HUNT

Bareback Mule Race by Negroes, Another Amusement Feature

The program for visiting day to be held at the Fruit and Truck Branch Experiment station this Friday, July 12 has been completed in every detail, promising to be the most interesting and valuable ever held at the local station.

Twenty busses and trucks with seats have been provided to tour visitors through the farm in the morning. The noon hour will be given over to a recreational program including leading talent from southwest Arkansas, or those who prefer not to bring their lunch, the Baptist Missionary Society is serving plate lunches and sandwiches.

Beginning at 1 o'clock, the general meeting will be held in the station outdoor auditorium. The principal address is to be made by Frank A. Briggs, editor of the Farm and Ranch, and noted journalist and farm leader from Dallas, Texas. President J. C. Futrell of the University of Arkansas and Dan T. Gray, dean and director of the college of agriculture are also scheduled for addresses on the general program.

A special feature for cotton farmers will be an address by I. W. Duggan, Washington, D. C., on the future cotton industry of America. Mr. Duggan is an able speaker and first assistant to Cully A. Cobb, chief of the AAA cotton administration.

Interesting features for women will be demonstrations in home planning by Mrs. Ida Fenton, who will conduct visitors through some of the model farm cottages on the station; and demonstrations in the use of vegetables by Miss Gertrude Conant, both of the agricultural extension service.

After the formal program of the experiment has been completed, local sportsmen under the direction of Dr. P. B. Carrigan are going to give a fox chase for the visitors. Some of the finest fox hounds in the state and a fox has been secured for this feature.

In addition, 15 local negroes and their mules will stage a bareback mule race. A record crowd of visitors is expected.

Stabilization Is Regarded Closer

But U. S. Must First Forbid Suits on Devaluation of the Dollar

By the Associated Press
A prediction in Paris that "America, France and England will soon unite for stabilization" met with an immediate reaction in the United States Wednesday.

At Washington, Attorney General Cummings told the house banking committee that unless a resolution was passed barring damage suits against the government to collect losses arising from the devaluation of the dollar "an international agreement to establish a gold standard would be almost impossible."

In New York, foreign exchange experts said there were no signs that England is any more ready to stabilize now than previously.

Flood Toll Hits 49

By the Associated Press
Flood and storm-harassed states Wednesday counted 49 dead, at least 7 missing, 5,000 homeless, and many millions in property damage.

Upper New York state accounted for most of the casualties, with 41 dead, 5 missing, and 3,000 homeless.

Moon Is to Blush in Eclipse As Half of World Watches

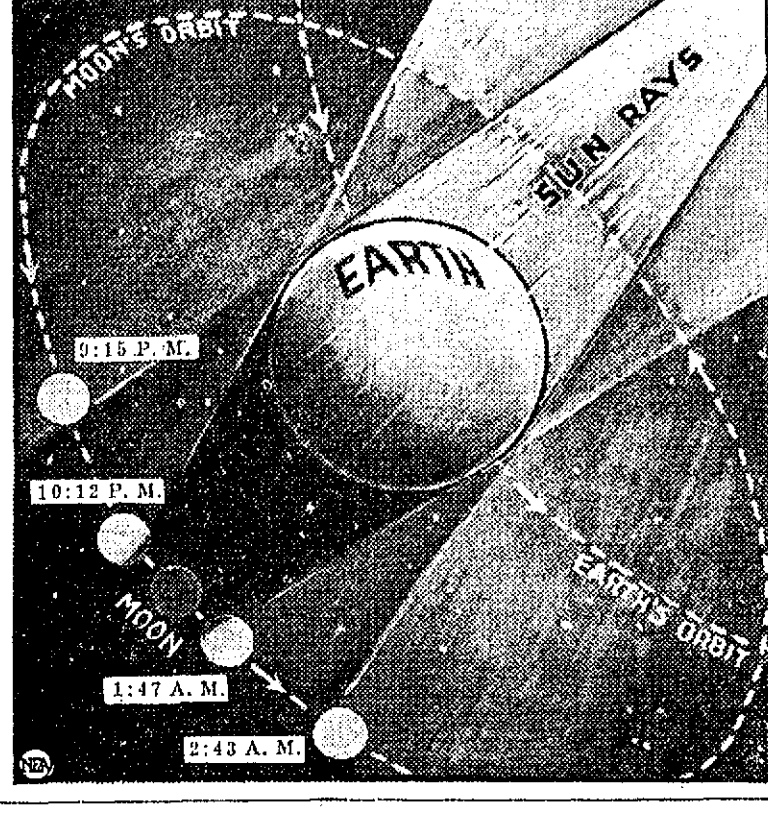

By NEA Service
Look up into the sky, the night of July 15 and 16, and you will see one of the year's greatest astronomical events—the eclipse of the moon.

Persons on all the northern end of the western hemisphere, nearly all of Africa, southwestern Europe, the Atlantic and the eastern Pacific will be able to watch the moon pass through the shadow cast by the earth from the sun's rays. The accompanying sketch shows how the eclipse occurs.

Glowing a dull red from light refracted by the earth's atmosphere, the satellite will enter the outer shadow of the earth at 9:15 p. m. It will then pass slowly through the dark inner shadow and then the outer shadow again until, at 2:43 a. m., it will be entirely in the clear.

Notice that the earth, because it is smaller than the sun, casts a double shadow, the outer shadow being called the penumbra, where part of the sun's light is still visible, and the inner part called the umbra, the sun is entirely hidden from it, and the only light that is apparent is that which is refracted by the earth's atmosphere and deflected again into its shadow.

Because of the enormous distances involved, the accompanying sketch is not drawn to scale.

Chris Wheaton Is Granted Clemency

Hope Negro Given Indefinite Furlough in Bradley Co. Arson Conviction

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—Governor Furrer granted an indefinite furlough Wednesday to Chris Wheaton, negro, serving a six-year prison sentence assessed in Bradley circuit court last September 15.

Futrell said clemency was recommended by Circuit Judge Dexter Bush, prosecuting attorney Ned Stewart, Sheriff Jim Bearden, and Alex. Washburn, Hope editor.

The Star endorsed clemency for Wheaton on the grounds that Jesse Hutson's term had been cut short because state authorities had compromised the arson case with a written offer of immunity; and Wheaton, convicted in the same case in the same court, had served an equal or longer portion of sentence.

Building Boom Is Forecast in Hope

Title Two Applications Pouring Into Little Rock, FHA Announces

Robert B. Babbitt, field representative of the federal housing administration of the Little Rock office, conferred with the Hempstead county FHA committee here Tuesday afternoon.

Mr. Babbitt discussed plans to speed up the program here. He told the committee that Hope would soon be sharing in a building program not witnessed since 1929.

The federal housing administration at Little Rock is much gratified over the work of the Hempstead committee headed by R. V. Herndon, and a great deal of new construction will be started in Hope within the next 60 days, Mr. Babbitt said. He continued:

"The better housing program continues to show improvement throughout the state. On July 6 a total of 687 applications for Title Two loans amounting to $1,523,726 had been received at the Little Rock office."

"This is only a beginning, as the national shortage of homes at present amounts to 1,700,000 due to a depression drop in the building of homes from 400,000 to 90,000 per year."

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The Treasury's $500,000,000 note issue offered Saturday was said by Treasury officials Tuesday to have been oversubscribed five times.

The issue comprised $500,000,000 1 1/2 per cent four-year and five-month Treasury notes. It represented the first new financing since December. The books were closed as of midnight Monday night.

Listeners were operated 24 hours a day in Meade county, Kansas, in a campaign to halt soil blowing.

School Refunding Bill Is Endorsed

Federal Proposal Would Place Many Districts on Cash Basis

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Interior Department endorsement of the Robinson bill, which would authorize the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to loan an aggregate of $10,000,000 to aid school districts to reduce and refinance their indebtedness, was contained Tuesday in a letter to the senate banking committee.

The bill, which will be taken up by a subcommittee this week, also has the approval of the RFC and Budget Bureau providing the lending power is limited to $10,000,000.

T. A. Walters, as acting secretary of the interior, wrote the committee that there were school districts in at least 23 states in default in the payment of bond maturities.

"It is my opinion," he added, "that if this bill becomes law many of these districts, by refinancing outstanding obligations, can begin operations on a cash basis and have a larger amount of funds available for the operation of normal school terms and payment of their employees in cash instead of with paper selling at a heavy discount."

Potatoes May Be Planted in July

Slips and Vine Cuttings Should Be Used for Planting Now

Sweet potatoes can be planted in early July and give fair returns. If possible, plants from disease free seed should be used. The crop can be used as food for the family and the culls as feed for livestock, relates Miss Helen Griffin, home demonstration agent.

Good land should be used for late plantings of sweet potatoes, since lack of fertility can cut down the yield. Part of the crop can be started from slips and later vine cuttings can be made to complete the plantings.

Sweet potatoes, if given good care, are one of the best crops both for food and feed purposes that can be grown. It is true that in late plantings yields will be cut from one-third to one-half, but at that they will equal in value most any other crop.

New Orleans May Surrender to Long

Two City Commissioners Announce They Will Cease Resistance

NEW ORLEANS, La.—(AP)—The surrender of New Orleans to Senator Huey P. Long appeared near Wednesday.

Two city commissioners who fought side by side with Mayor Walmsley against Long announced Tuesday that they did not intend to oppose the senator any longer.

"The affairs of the city demand peace," Finance Commissioner Miles Pratt and Property Commissioner Joseph Skelly said in a signed statement.

The Hempstead County council of home demonstration clubs met in the auditorium of the Guernsey school, Wednesday, July 3, with Guernsey and Bright Star clubs as joint hosts. This was the fourth meeting of the council and was attended by 149 women.

The meeting opened at 10 o'clock with Mrs. C. R. White, president of the council presiding. Mrs. G. B. Robinson of the Guernsey club welcomed the council to Guernsey in behalf of the two clubs. Mrs. Ruffin White of the Allen club gave the report.

Pressure on House to Pass Last Four of "Must" Bills

Threaten to End Wealth-Tax Hearings Because of G. O. P. Heckling

SENATE BACKS F. D.

Holding Company Abolition Clause Must Be Retained, in Conference

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—Setting aside for the time being the much-discussed topic of friction between the president and the house, Democratic leaders sought Wednesday to expedite the Roosevelt program.

They expressed hope that congress might adjourn the last week in August.

Wednesday these leaders were bending every effort to put through the house the following bills—the only "must" measures still lacking house approval:

1. The new tax program.
2. A bill outlawing suits for recovery of losses alleged to have been suffered under the gold policy.
3. The Guffey coal stabilization bill.
4. A federal alcohol control bill.

Battle Over Tax

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—A threat to suspend hearings cut short another heated political debate over President Roosevelt's tax program Wednesday before the house ways and means committee.

Representative Treadway, Massachusetts Republican, suggested that the tax bill ought to be put off but won't be because you Democrats get orders while we on this side don't.

Representative Cooper, Tennessee Democrat, retorted with a statement that he was ready to suspend hearings if time was to be wasted with a political discussion.

Senate Backs President

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—By an abrupt change of tactics the senate Wednesday sent the hotly-disputed public utility bill to conference and instructed its conferees to insist on the provision desired by President Roosevelt outlawing "unnecessary" holding companies within seven years.

Debate AAA Amendments
WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The senate Wednesday debated the much-disputed administration amendments to the AAA.

The farm measure was taken up on a motion by Senator Robinson, Democratic leader.

Chairman Smith, of the agriculture committee, made no explanation of the bill, but asked immediate consideration of the amendments.

No Loan Announcement

WASHINGTON.—(AP)—President Roosevelt said Wednesday no immediate announcement regarding cotton loans for the coming week is in prospect.

The present basis for cotton loans stands until August 1.

Markets

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP)—Irregularity characterized price movements at the start of trading on the cotton market Wednesday with near months two points higher to one point lower while distant positions were off around three points.

July opened at 12.02 and extended its gain to 12.05 during the opening hour while October at 11.71 and December at 11.70 regained their early losses.

There was little in the news to influence price in either direction and trading slackened after first call business was transacted.

NEW YORK.—(AP)—Cotton futures opened steady two points lower to one higher with lower Liverpool values offset by trade buying. July 12.06; October 11.75; December 11.72; January 11.71; March 11.78; May 11.82.

McGraw-Hill selling on favorable weather reports and the relatively easy cables from Liverpool was readily absorbed. Buying was attributed to trade price fixing in the near months.

The market held steady within a comparatively narrow range during the first hour with October working up from 11.75 to 11.78 and with the general list ruling about unchanged to two points higher.

LIVERPOOL.—(AP)—Cotton 6000 bales including 100 American spot quick; prices five points higher; quotations in pence: American strict good middling 7.47; good middling 7.17; strict middling 7.02; middling 6.87; low middling 6.62; strict good ordinary 6.42; good ordinary 6.12. Futures closed quiet and steady. July 6.58; October 6.25; December 6.17; January 6.16; March 6.15; May 6.13.

Bible Gave Right Diet for Bearing Children

With all the research and experimentation that has been going on in this modern age, science still has to admit that our ancestors were not very far from wrong in many ideas concerning their health.

For instance, we know now that vitamins A, D and E are essential to successful childbirth. Well, an English medical authority calls attention to a diet recommended in the Old Testament to prevent sterility, or failure to have children, and the foods suggested form an excellent regimen in themselves.

The diet which this physician has found in the Bible includes wheat, barley and meal, parched corn, beans, lentils, oil, butter, honey, sheep, cheese, fatted chicken and fatted oxen, and in fact all the fruits of the field.

The same doctor points out that many cases of failure to bear children, which he has seen in his practice, have been corrected by a suitable improvement of the diet and prescription of glandular materials necessary to speed up the chemical changes going on in the body.

It is also important that the expectant mother get a sufficient amount of calcium and phosphorus, so that the baby may have sound bones and teeth. Nature prepares for the child's adequate use of this calcium and phosphorus, through providing the child before birth, during the twelfth week, with its thyroid and parathyroid glands.

The vitamins are important in affecting suitable action of the glands of internal secretion, and the glands of internal secretion are the motor of the human organism. By correct diet, sunshine and exercise, disaster during childbirth may be avoided in many cases.

A deficiency in vitamin C and D in the diet, and a subsequent deficiency of calcium and phosphorus preceding childbirth are reflected in disturbances of the gums, decay of the teeth, muscular weakness, spasmodic cramps in the legs and arms and even mild convulsions.

The substances in the diet which are of greatest importance in the period preceding childbirth are those which provide iron, copper, calcium and phosphorus together with the vitamins. Those particularly concerned are asparagus, almonds, lean beef, beans, barley, carrots, cheese, the yolks of eggs, green vegetables such as lettuce and spinach, liver, oatmeal, oysters, peas, potatoes, prunes, raisins, walnuts and wheat.

It has been said that the average mother need not eat for two, but so far as calcium is concerned, she requires much more than the average mother is likely to include in her diet.

Declares U. S. Navy Is Unfit for a War—Physicist Assails Fleet and Officers in New Book

Although the American people are paying something like $400,000,000 a year to support their navy, the navy is not ready for war and stands an excellent chance of soaking up a first-class licking the next time it gets into a fight.

So says F. Russell Bichowsky, former physicist in the Naval Research Laboratory, in a forthright and startling new book, "Is the Navy Ready?" His answer to the question which forms the book's title is a resounding "No," and he undertakes to prove his point chiefly by quoting from naval officers themselves.

Annals, he says, does its job poorly, sending to the fleet men who are poorly fitted for the highly specialized jobs that await them. The fleet, he says, in turn, fails at its job of completing the officers' training. They become tradition-bound and custom-ridden, and the system crushes whatever originality or independence of thought they may have.

even worse fix. Our marksmanship, he says, is worse now than it was during the war with Spain, when it was scandalous; our heavy cruisers are "tin-clads" that could be sunk by ships far below their class; we have ignored the enormous potentialities of the Diesel engine; we ruined our valuable dirigible arm by entrusting it to non-flying officers.

Much of his criticism seems to me to be the kind that would apply to almost any navy; but there is enough of it that is pointed directly at our own to make a patriotic American feel uneasy.

Published by Vanguard the book sells for $3.

YOUR CHILDREN

By Olive Roberts Barton

Irregular Sleeping Schedule Spoils Family's Dispositions

"Ho, hum," yawned Mrs. Brown. "We ought to be in bed, Jim, but it's so nice and cool out here I hate to go in. It's the best part of the day. Anyhow, I don't have to get up so early now with the children out of school."

Next morning Mrs. Brown shut off the alarm at seven thirty and went back to bed. "Just for another five minutes," she said to herself. "She was so tired and sleepy she could scarcely move. It had been nearly one when they turned out the last light. Finally she dressed and woke Jim and went down to get breakfast."

Getting the Children Up. Jim was tired, too. It promised to be another hot day, and the prospect of eight hours at the office was torture. At home his wife was wondering how in the world she was ever going to tackle the ironing and get through with the housework. She called the children and prepared their breakfast. Except for a few grunts and whines overhead, nothing happened.

She went upstairs and did the routine shaking and admonishing. "Ted, you get right up this minute. Your breakfast will be ruined. Anyway I'm not going to do this every morning. I have work to do, and I can't have a lot of lazybones worrying me like this. Get up."

She repeated the performance in the girl's room. "Yes, you do need your breakfast. You can't get along on two meals a day," she added to the obvious answer.

She had them on their feet at last and went down to warm up the oatmeal and get the orange juice out of the refrigerator. "Gracie, you dish things up when you come down. I'm going to the laundry," she called.

A full hour later Gracie came down and drank her glass of orange juice. Helen and Ted struggled earthwards another hour after that. One had gone back to bed and the other just fooled away time.

Take Tip From Animals. The house was hot and cluttered. Kitchen and dining-room topsy-turvy. The three were out playing somewhere when their mother came up from the laundry at eleven to make the beds. Then it was lunch time and the dishes would have to wait. Lunch was a sketchy affair because she was too tired and too busy to give it attention.

"I never used to be so tired when they were all in school," she thought. "I can't stand this all summer."

There was bickering and quarreling. All of them were on edge. The children yammered and coaxed, and the mother, weary and impatient, snapped at them.

Yes, it is a temptation to say up on summer evenings, but the birds and the beasts have better sense. Plenty of rest and sleep, a certain organized routine and food at the right time makes for a smoother road.

No Use Trying. Mrs. Horty (engaging new cook—"I suppose you know that my husband is extremely particular about his food?")

SUN-TAN

CHAPTER III

JO and Tubby and Bret did full justice to the food. When, at last, Bret leaned back in his chair with a contented sigh and produced a package of cigarettes there was little left on the table but the paper containers and the modest tableware Joe had found in the kitchen.

"Tubby," Jo said, "I don't know what I'll do without you this summer. I simply couldn't have dragged myself outside for dinner."

"I don't want to take all the credit," Tubby told her. "It was partly Bret's idea."

Bret looked at Jo through the gray haze of cigarette smoke. "And now I think Tubby and I ought to be skipping back to the campus. You'll need a full night's rest in preparation for tomorrow."

And truly enough Jo found herself quite ready to sleep again when Tubby and Bret had gone. She was so weary that she had only her bag brought up from the luggage room, and in the space of a very few minutes she had donned blue pajamas, left a call at the desk for seven o'clock, and climbed between the sheets.

When she was awakened the usually dingy room was bright with early morning June sunshine, and as Jo rummaged in her bag for her toilet kit she astonished herself by breaking into a song.

Really, it wasn't so bad to be on your own, to be facing the world with only your two hands and your brain. Especially when the morning was as bright as this one!

On the table was the newspaper Bret had left, folded at the advertisement he'd advised her to follow up. When she had dressed, Jo tore out the little rectangle of printing and shoved it into the pocket of her suit. She still felt certain, somehow, that she was going to be successful in getting this job. She had a "hunch" about it—and Jo's hunches weren't too often wrong.

SHE stopped for breakfast at a little coffee shop in the same block as the Fendale, and when she had finished she inquired about the address of her prospective job.

"Oh, that's right near here," the cashier said. "Just turn to the right at the next block down, and then walk about four blocks."

Jo thanked her, glad indeed that the distance didn't call for cartage. The advance rent at the Fendale had left her very little money, and Jo was determined that she would not appeal again to her parents for help. "And if I get this place," she thought, "I can walk to work. That would be fortunate—and healthy."

When she reached the proper block it took her some little time to locate the address, but at last she found it, and her heart sank. It was not a very impressive establishment. What she saw was hardly anything more than a small store room with rather a narrow door, and over the front was a weathered sign which read "Brown's Marine Supply Company."

He dropped his business-like tone and smiled engagingly, "You're new here, aren't you?"

rather gruff voice startled her. "Well, you're early, anyhow."

She turned to see a short, middle-aged man peering at her near-sightedly. He fished in his hip pocket for a ring of keys, selected one and proceeded to open the door.

"Did you come in answer to the ad in the paper?"

"Yes," Jo said. "I'm Jo Darien, and—well, I'd like to work for you."

He looked at her quizzically. "Oh, you would, would you?"

At this question Jo became not at all sure that she would. But she remembered Bret's words: "Of course, it's only half-time—but it'll help you keep your chin up, and it will give you the afternoons to look for something else."

"I'm Brown," the man said. "Owner and proprietor. Come on in."

Jo followed him through the store, and into a tiny back compartment which could hardly be called an office.

"You look pretty young," Brown said, eyeing her again in the glare of a fly-specked globe he had turned on.

"I had an experience keeping books?"

"A little. When I was in high school I used to help my father with the accounts in his store sometimes."

You come to work at 8:30 in the morning. No sense getting here as early as you did today. And you work until 12. The girl I had last summer I paid $3 a week."

Jo's heart sank to the very bottom of her brogues. Eight dollars a week! Why that wouldn't pay her rent at the Fendale, and she didn't have the slightest idea where she could find a place that was cheaper.

"I'd like to take it, Mr. Brown," she told him. "But—you see, I'm absolutely without help from anyone else, and I just couldn't pay rent and buy food for $3 a week."

Mr. Brown grunted. "It really ain't a job for a girl that's not living at home. I ought to find some girl that just wants to pick up a little extra money."

"But that kind of girl doesn't need a job desperately—like I do," said Jo. "If you have to have help at all you ought to be willing to pay for it."

She waited for the storm of abuse she felt sure would come; but Mr. Brown remained silently meek. At last he said, "I'll pay you $10, if that's satisfactory, because I'm expecting things to be better this summer. And if they get a lot better, and you can do the work, we'll make it $12."

"Very well," said Jo, removing her jaunty hat. "I'll take it."

"Good!" Mr. Brown reached into his battered desk and brought out a sheet of papers. "These here are charge slips for the past month or so. I haven't had a chance to enter them. They go into this account book here, and then of course we send out monthly statements." He produced another huge ledger book, blew a coating of dust from it.

"You see, I represent a lot of manufacturers of boat engines and equipment and the like. Do you know anything about boats?"

GLORIFYING YOURSELF

By Alicia Hart

Stage Shows Women Beauty Short Cuts.

Although cosmetics must be used more lavishly behind the footlights than on the street, many practical makeup hints can be learned from women of the theater. It is from them—these actresses who have to apply makeup artistically before each performance—that the rest of us discover satisfactory short cuts to beauty.

For example, a girl who has trouble putting on dry rouge will find that a rabbit's foot, such as is included in every theatrical makeup kit, will make the process simpler.

After you have used foundation lotion and powder, whisk the rabbit's foot across the top of the rouge cake and, making a baseless triangle across each cheek, fill in the triangles and smooth down rough edges with the fuzzy foot. The softness of the air prevents uneven blotches in the rouged areas.

Then, too, there is the business of getting powder on so that it will stay for hours and still not make your skin look heavy and coated instead of well groomed and dull.

An actress always dips a clean puff or a large piece of cotton in her face powder and presses it firmly against the nose and throat. She puts on about twice as much as actually is needed, and allows it to remain for several minutes. Then she brushes it off with a soft baby brush or dusts it lightly with the reverse side of the cotton.

Whether she is the leading lady or an extra in a production, she uses makeup as carefully on arms, back and shoulders as on face and neck. She doesn't leave her dressing room until each part of her body that the audience will see is perfectly groomed. This should be a lesson to all women. If you do not use one of the liquid powders on arms and back, apply the same foundation and powder as you did on face and throat.

The New Deal

Harry's outfit.

Moral: Be Honest

Officials sometimes find themselves followed or their files searched. If they're honest, they're likely to be philosophical about it. Not results of the spy work are a diminished number leaks, which New Dealers are usually jittery about, considerable resentment, and revelation of occasional cases of dishonesty.

At one time or another, whole agencies have developed phones as to wire tapping. Individual telephone extensions have been tapped at AAA and FWA, for instance, at times when subordinates were suspected of discharging with the administration or worse.

Tapped Wire Never Clicks

Hysteria over the practice usually exceeds the extent to which it is used. Frequently one hears that "my wire is tapped" because clicks sound during conversations.

Fact is, almost any government switchboard has two or more positions and operators at the other positions make the click when they plug in and find the line busy. (Or so I'm told.)

Congressman John Rankin of Mississippi, in the heat of the holding company bill fight, asserted a belief his wire was tapped, because he "heard clicks." But much weight must be given to the word of Louis R. Glavis, famous chief of the FWA-Interior investigative force, who recently remarked in private conversation:

"A tapped wire never clicks!"

How U. S. Job Is Landed

Gradual release of 4000 NRA workers adds to an estimated (probably too high) 20,000 persons who are said to be wandering around town looking for government jobs.

Most of the 4000 are likely to "land." Lots of people are being hired by various agencies, especially those engaged in work-relief, without any very careful selection or knowledge of who they are.

Mr. Bob McCormick, who covers federal employe news for the Washington Daily News and gets inside all the departments and bureaus, gives a correct tip-off on how jobs are obtained in Washington, as follows:

"In the first place, you must 'work from the inside.' Out of every 100 emergency employes being taken on these days, 99 have friends already installed."

"Congressional endorsements are worth while only when obtained from someone in The Hill who has a standing with the agency in question. A pal, though he be but an office boy, can do wonders in opening the gates if he is in sufficiently good standing with the men above."

"Cabinet members can, of course, get almost anything they wish, even jobs. They are most wary about exerting their influence, however, and usually confine it strictly to their friends and friends of their friends."

"Once in a blue moon, some frank of luck breaks this established routine, and a person without special influence finds himself at work, but invariably in a low-grade position."

Conditions today call for active participation in public affairs by the best elements of our people—Sir Robert Borden.

I follow issues, not men. My record shows no inconsistency of principle.—Senator Borah of Idaho.

The Treasure Chest

We have an iron-ribbed treasure chest, where valuables are stored; We keep them there against hard times, When most we need our hoard. In this deep chest all sorts of things are fondly packed away— The love of friends, their kindly deeds, The tender things they say, The hope they give, their faith and trust, The happiness they share— Oh, many are the gems we've packed Deep in our strong chest there! And so when hard times come around And try to make us blue, We look into our chest and say "Oh, my dear, how blest are you!" —Selected.

Mrs. Graves opened the meeting with the reading of the hymn, "A Charge to Keep I Have," as a reminder to the members, that despite heat and other hindrances, there was a charge to keep and urged the cooperation of all members. The program was presented by the Jo Vesey Circle, with Mrs. R. L. Broach presiding. The devotional was opened by singing, "The Church is Our Foundation," as an introduction to the subject for the afternoon's program in the form of a play entitled, "The Church" stressing "The Church Eternal, The Church Universal, The

"Clive of India" Saenger Feature

Ronald Colman and Loretta Young Here Thursday and Friday

Ronald Colman and Loretta Young are screen lovers again. "Clive of India," the first million-dollar production of 20th Century Pictures, shows Thursday and Friday at the Saenger, takes up, romantically speaking, where their previous picture, left off. As the camera faded out on "Bulldog Drummond Strikes Back," the doughty Drummond held Loretta in his arms looking forward to their marriage.

In "Clive of India," however, the drama starts with their wedding. Loretta, a young English girl, receives a letter proposing marriage from Robert Clive, a young clerk in India who has seen her picture. Something impels her to accept and she arrives in India to find that her poor clerk has, meanwhile, become the conqueror of the land and the greatest of England's heroes. Without any preliminary courtship they are married—and their love story starts from there.

The drama is taken from actual chapters of the life of Robert Clive, who rose to greatness and became Lord Clive, only to be attacked, dragged down and broken by his enemies.

sponse. Mrs. W. E. Elmore of the Washington club gave the devotional, after which reports and goals of the different clubs were given. The meeting then adjourned for lunch which was spread picnic fashion under the trees.

After luncheon the meeting opened with Green Laster club presenting a playlet written and directed by Miss Mary Louise Rodgers of the Green Laster club.

The dress contest was held during the afternoon with Miss Rosalie Wolfe, clothing specialist, judging the dresses. There were 20 women entering the contest which was classed under three heads: House dress, church dress and afternoon dress. Some of that taken out being said to be several times as rich as any found elsewhere in the United States. The average recovery of mercury in the United States is 7 to 8 pounds per ton, while it is believed that the average will be far above 20 pounds to the ton in the Pike county district.

Extracting the Mercury The method of extracting at the new company's plant will be through a revolving furnace, very similar to the large furnace at the cement plant. This method is the one used in most extraction plants in the United States, and is perhaps the safest and most certain method to be found. Reports have been used in some of the plants which have been operating in the district, but much of the mercury is lost through this process. The rock is first ground and then fed into the revolving furnace at the end away from the fire, as the ore makes it way down the revolving furnace, the heat is heated to a high degree, releasing the mercury in the form of vapor, which then is pulled back through large condensers and finally settles as pure mercury, and then is drawn off into iron flasks, each flask having a capacity of 76 pounds.

A Four-Star Special at Charity Polo Sidelines

Charity began at the polo grounds for Hollywood's top flight movie talent the other day, when a host of famous cinema stars watched their male studio brethren perform in a round-robin polo match for the benefit of the Junior League's Children Hospital Fund. In this sideline group are, left to right, Joan and Constance Bennett, Dolores Del Rio and Virginia Bruce, four of Hollywood's reigning feminine stars, shown watching some sparkling action on the field. At least, three of them are; Joan apparently has her mind on other things.

Highland Crop Begins Moving—Is Second Only to Georgia

NASHVILLE, Ark.—The first of the Elberta peach crop of the Highland District moved from here last week-end, practically all the peaches moving by truck.

There is a heavy demand here by trucks, and very satisfactory prices were received for the first picking, with indications that the market would be much stronger for the finer fruit which will be harvested hereafter. The first of the Elberta harvest is the poorest fruit of the season, but all the inferior fruit has about gone with the first picking.

With the Elbertas of this district short, but of extra high quality, it is anticipated by many of the orchardists that the price will be better this year than for a number of years, and they are demanding good cash prices for the peaches sold to cash buyers. The general market condition is good at this time, with the Georgia crop moving in large lots.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture in a bulletin dated July 9 gives the following summary of carlot shipments:

California	89	661
Georgia	3442	2088
S. Carolina	63	31

Not Too Late to Plant a Garden

Long Growing Season Favorable to Garden Crops Here

Gardeners in this section of the state are favored with a long growing season to such an extent that well-managed gardens will produce an abundance of food supplies, even yet, says Miss Helen Griffin, county home demonstration agent.

Hot weather vegetables, such as tomatoes, okra, sweet potatoes, egg plants, snap beans lima beans, pole beans, cowpeas, cucumbers, Swiss chard, watermelons, and cantaloupes, are some of the vegetables that should find a place in every garden during the summer months.

Later in July and in August and September additional plantings can be made of short season crops such as were planted in the spring garden. Mustard turnips, lettuce, cabbage, potatoes, and radishes for the early fall garden are suggested by Miss Griffin. Gardeners should take advantage of last year's experience in planning their gardens by planting vegetables that proved themselves able to withstand drought conditions, Miss Griffin explained.

when you set out to purchase your 1935 car. Consider also the improved Ford V-8 engine — new interior refinements — new streamlined beauty — new "Comfort Zone" riding. All passengers now ride, cradled between the axles, in the "Comfort Zone." Front and back seats are now wider. There is more leg room. Fordor Sedans seat six passengers — comfortably.

No matter what you may want in a car — style, safety, speed, power, economy, rugged endurance or comfort — the Ford V-8 for 1935 will meet your needs. See this car today. Desperate Ethiopia Musters Forces for War With Italy

European Cavalrymen have trained these mounted Ethiopians . . .

Outmoded cannon called into action again.

"War! War! War!" Five thousand Black Shirts who volunteered for duty against Ethiopia roared their fighting enthusiasm at Premier Benito Mussolini. He had just assured them that "we have decided on the struggle and we will carry it to the end . . . The decision is irrevocable." Arrayed against them will be the fury of Ethiopia's army of pariahs, mustered from the equatorial jungles and equipped with a motley array of modern and ancient weapons.

Trained and partly officered by European experts during the long months of diplomatic negotiations, the black tribesmen far outnumber Il Duce's forces, just as they did at Adowa, in 1896, when the Italians were repulsed. Here NEA

Service cameras kaleidoscopically highlight Ethiopia's fighting forces, contrasting their sprucely uniformed and equipped divisions with units that rely on fighting frenzy, native courage and outmoded weapons to overwhelm foes.

Ann Avoids Jail for Contempt

Ann Harding's screen appearance usually create a bit. But her appearance in court as pictured here served another purpose: it removed the possibility of her having to go to jail. Contempt of court proceedings, which she had incurred by refusal to answer an attorney's questions, were dropped when she showed up in court at Los Angeles to give a deposition in her fight with ex-husband Harry Baumister over custody of their daughter, Jane, 7.

As 70,000 Watched All-Star Game

Record Crowd for Classic Packs Stadium

Hemsley Triples; Gehrig Scores First Run

Seventy thousands baseball fans, a record attendance for the American-National Leagues' all-star game, were packed into the Cleveland Stadium to provide this colorful scene when the junior league's team registered its third straight victory over its National League rivals in the midsummer classic, by a 4-1 count. Despite threatening weather, the reserved seat sections are shown jammed with spectators, with thousands in the bunting-draped upper stands.

Hitting the dirt to reach third on his drive to the left field wall in the second inning of the all-star game in Cleveland Stadium Rolfe Hemsley is being called safe by Umpire Ziggy Sears in this picture, as Third Sacker Pepper Martin pulls the ball on the runner. The St. Louis Browns' star backstop scored a few minutes later, after Shortstop Joe Cronin crashed a long fly to left center, which was taken by Berger, this marker giving the American Leaguers a 3-0 lead.

Jogging around from first base on Jimmy Fox's homer in the opening inning, Lou Gehrig, Yankee slugger, is shown reaching the plate with the first run of the all-star game. Jimmy Wilson is the catcher.

Off to Make North China Safe for Japan

While diplomatic tension between Japan and Russia increased as a result of Soviet complaints about "invasions" of its territory along the Manchukuo border, Nipponese warlords continued to pour troops into the territory along the Great Wall of China. Amid a scene of holiday gaiety, happy Japanese troops are shown leaving Tokyo enroute to North China, from which the Nanking government has been forced to withdraw its army.

Aviators Make the Welkin Ring

If, like most folks, you have trouble making smoke rings, take a tip from the British aviators and make rings with planes instead of tobacco. Their welkin ringing activities were a feature of preparations at Northolt Aerodrome in England for the Royal Air Force display.

Wings Breaking Through Dawn

The photographer has turned artist in this depiction of a flock of geese winging their way through a wooded glen as the early sun filters through morning mist. The ethereal beauty of the picture so impressed the judges at the Annual Salon of Photography that they awarded it first prize in the pictorial class. The photo is by Erno Vadas of Budapest, Hungary. The salon was held this year at the exposition in San Diego.

Paroles Flayed by Head of "G" Men

A National Scandal, Aiding All Criminals, Says J. Edgar Hoover

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—(AP)—J. Edgar Hoover, director of the federal Bureau of Investigation described Tuesday "easy probation from sob-sister judges" as one of the "aids by which crime flourishes."

The young executive of the G-Men told more than 600 police chiefs at the convention of their international association that parole practices in America "approaches a national scandal."

"Prison sentences which send a man to jail for 20 years when a judge 'knows full well that he will be out in five,' Hoover said, were a 'monumental fake which has been too long perpetrated upon the American people.'"

"Within 15 years, Harmon Metz Waley (sentenced for kidnaping George Weyerhaeuser) will be eligible for parole, his debt served for having stolen an innocent, defenseless child," Hoover said. "Meanwhile Volney Davis, unless he also meets some magnificent mercy, will have only begun to serve out that long-life sentence for the stealing of an adult (Edward G. Bremer of St. Paul). Therefore I ask, not in the spirit of criticism, of course, but merely from a standpoint of befuddled curiosity, what and where is justice?"

To the list of public enemies he added "shyster lawyers and other legal vermin, who consort with criminals," and the "legal shyster in law-making."

He attacked politicians who seek "ballots spawned in prison cells and the support of gutter scum."

"The bulle's of the underworld are today poisoned by the verdigris of politics," he said.

"The greatest handicap to law enforcement, the new social enemies, Hoover said, are the 'sob sisters, the intruders, the uninformated and misinformed know-it-alls, the sentimentalists and the alleged criminologists who believe that the individual is greater than society.'"

Howard to Vote on Liquor Sept. 5

Referendum Petition Signed by More Than 35,000 of Legal Voters

NASHVILLE, Ark.—An election on the question of permitting the legal sale of liquor in Howard county was ordered by the Howard county court at a session here Monday, at which time Judge A. T. Henry held the petitions adequate and overruled motions of the respondents, objecting to the calling of the election.

The date for the election was set at September 5, the date set out in the petitions, which were held to contain more than 35 per cent of the legal voters of the county.

While no appeal was asked by the respondents, it was thought probable that an appeal will be taken to the circuit court to secure an injunction prohibiting the election commissioners from conducting the election, the way for an appeal having been paved by the respondents for an appeal.

The legality of the petitions was questioned by the respondents on several allegations, but all their contentions were overruled by the court.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

Without Calomel—And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Laxatives are only makeshifts. A mere bowel movement doesn't get at the cause. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." Harmless, gentle, yet amazing in making bile flow freely. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name. Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

Chesterfields "go to town"

They Satisfy

—that's just the 1935 way of saying what Chesterfields have been saying for years...

Chesterfields do about everything a cigarette ought to do.

Chesterfields have TASTE—yes plenty of it. But not too strong.

And Chesterfields are MILD—but they're not insipid or flat.
